The Black Atlantic
AAAS 329
ARTHIST 383
ICS 226S-01

Architecture

Thursday, November 11, 2021

Richard Burton Fitzgerald and family, Durham, NC, c. 1900.
Clockwise from upper left: Photograph of the Fitzgerald Building, 700-702 Kent Street, Durham, NC, built in 1910. Photographs of the intersection of Kent and Chapel Hill Street (with the Fitzgerald Building on the left), Durham, NC, c. 1950s & 2010s.
Clockwise from lower left:
Clockwise from upper left:
Left: “Mother Bethel” African Methodist Episcopal Church, 419 S. 6th Street, Philadelphia, PA, built in 1890. Above: Interior of “Mother Bethel” AME Church, Philadelphia, PA.
Left: “Mother Bethel” African Methodist Episcopal Church, 419 S. 6th Street, Philadelphia, PA, built in 1890. Above: Interior of “Mother Bethel” AME Church, Philadelphia, PA.
Left & above: Two views of Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church, 1518 M Street, NW, Washington, DC. Built in 1886.
Left: Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church, 1518 M Street, NW, Washington, DC. Right: Details of stain glass windows, Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, DC.
Left: Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church under construction, at 110 Calhoun Street, Charleston, SC, built in 1891. Above: Interior of Emanuel AME Church, Charleston, SC.
Left: Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church, 110 Calhoun Street, Charleston, SC, built in 1891. Right: Stained glass window & interior of Emanuel AME Church, Charleston, SC.
Clockwise from above: Hayti Heritage Center/St. Joseph’s Historic Foundation (formerly St. Joseph’s African Methodist Episcopal Church), 804 Old Fayetteville Street, Durham, NC, built in 1891. Aerial view of St. Joseph’s African Methodist Episcopal Church, Durham, NC, c. 1950s. Interior of Hayti Heritage Center/St. Joseph’s Historic Foundation (formerly St. Joseph’s African Methodist Episcopal Church), Durham, NC.