Interested in combining your knowledge of Spanish and Environmental Studies? This course will help prepare you for research and fieldwork abroad by exploring how language and culture impact environmental policy and practice. Through interviews, case studies, and authentic documents in Spanish, we will explore how communities in North, Central, and South America approach issues from energy and biodiversity to conservation and sustainability.

PRESENTS

VOICES in GLOBAL HEALTH
ARABIC - FRENCH - MANDARIN - SPANISH

Wednesday, April 11th
5:30-7pm in Perkins 217

Please join us for an interactive poster session featuring undergraduate research in multiple languages. Sponsored by Service-Learning, the Health Humanities Lab, and the CLAC Initiative. Catering by Guasaca!

FOR MORE INFO: trinity.duke.edu/clac

CLAC@DUKE logo with Duke University logo at the bottom.