

Why do I want to become an economist?

- To discover the unknown world through economical and interdisciplinary knowledge.
- To make myself and people I love better off and make better decisions.
- To use wisdom and economic principles to face global challenges and make the world a better place.

The Nobel Prize in Economics in 2035 is awarded to him for his contribution in “using merging theory to make unprecedented connection between microeconomics and macroeconomics.”