Name of Potential Opportunity: Innovation Management: Social Impact Analysis for Forensic Technology Center of Excellence

Name and titles of potential supervisor/s (and link to external-facing RTI expert page, if available):

Name: Kelle Barrick, PhD
Title: Research Criminologist, Division for Applied Justice Research

Name: Rebecca Shute
Title: Innovation Analyst, RTI Innovation Advisors

Overview: (2-4 sentences)

RTI International operates the National Institute of Justice’s Forensic Technology Center of Excellence, which promotes the adoption of forensic technologies through dissemination and technology transition efforts. The intern will help quantify and document the social impact of the NIJ’s funding efforts towards forensic research and development into a publication. The intern will help the team aggregate and understand key data-centered and human-centered impact indicators.

Preferred skills: (including foreign languages, programming languages, etc.)

Broad social science or technical background; preferred experience in data analysis, statistics, technology transfer, or innovation management. Knowledge of or previous experience with product or process development, project portfolio mapping, market research, and technology evaluation is preferred; Exceptional written and oral communication, time management, and analytical skills

Number or Interns: 1