

Kayla Fries

Kayla Fries graduated cum laude from Duke Law in May 2022. She is a recipient of the Public Interest and Public Service Certificate. While in law school, she served as the Co-President of the National Security Law Society, the Vice President of the Public Interest Law Foundation, and on the Executive Board of Duke Law Mock Trial.

Her studies of national security law, cyber law, and federal criminal law culminated in valuable professional opportunities, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation Honors Legal Internship Program and a full-time externship with the Counterterrorism Section of the National Security Division of the U.S. Department of Justice.

After graduation, Kayla entered the federal workforce through the U.S. Attorney General's Honors Program and currently serves as Assistant General Counsel in the Litigation Branch of the Office of the General Counsel, Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Prior to law school, Kayla graduated summa cum laude from Boston College with a Bachelor's degree in Psychology and worked as an analyst for a large law firm in Boston, Massachusetts.
