Welcome to Children Helping Science! Before you take your first study, we are asking you to share some information about your family.

One reason we are developing Internet-based experiments is to represent a more diverse group of families in our research. Your answers to these questions will help us understand what audience we reach, as well as how factors like speaking multiple languages or having older siblings affect children's learning.

Even if you allow your study videos to be published for scientific or publicity purposes, your demographic information is never published in conjunction with your video.

What country do you live in?

How would you describe the area where you live?

What racial group(s) does your family identify with/belong to? Please select any that apply to someone in your children's immediate family.
Please select the appropriate responses for everyone in your children's immediate family.

How many children do you have?

Enter as a comma-separated list: YYYY-MM-DD, YYYY-MM-DD, ...

How many parents/guardians do your children live with?

If the answer varies or needs more explanation, you can tell us more below.

What is your age?

What is your gender?

How did you hear about Lookit?

Anything else you'd like us to know?

First Name

First Name

This lets us select the correct child to participate in a particular study. A nickname or initials are fine! We may include your child's name in email to you (for instance, "There's a new study available for Molly!") but will never publish names or use them in our research.

Birthday

Birthday

This lets us figure out exactly how old your child is when they participate in a study. We never publish children's birthdates or information that would allow a reader to calculate the birthdate.
